Foreword

Barbara Jean Griffin

In preparing the '67 Panther, the graduating journalism class at Terrell has made an attempt to retain the valuable features of the previous editions and yet give both the book and its contents a new look. The book contains a carefully refined and improved presentation of the basic campus life.

The Panther Staff is indebted to numerous businessmen, teachers, and students who have contributed to the improvement of this book. We especially appreciate the new journalism teacher Mrs. Earlene Parks, for her hard and industrious work.

Turn the pages with us as we present the enjoyable days of our lives for "Life is an Open Book."

Theme

Life Is An Open Book

Life is an open book, for each new adventure and misadventure is indellably written upon its pages for all posterity to see. It is a pictorial guide full of mystery and intrigue, fantasy and romance, horror and deceit...a record of our lives. Therefore it is most fitting that we should choose this theme for the "1967 Panther" for it serves as a record of our lives during this past year. In it we have tried to capture, in pictures, all the memorable events which have helped to make this year a most exciting and important one in our lives. With this book, a chapter in our life ends; it is the sincere hope of the journalism class that this book, as well as the books of our lives will forever serve as a source of pleasure and memory to all generations.

Prologue

This is the year that flew past before we knew it began and held for many something like unto that first taste of honey.
This is the year we have tried to capture in words and pictures and we hope that each word and picture has locked in it something which will cause it to spring to life so that you may relive some of those wonderful, golden, and treasured moments that were once yours, but now belong to time.

Here is "Life 'in' an Open Book" . . .

In Appreciation

Life on God's grand earth is a literal battle for survival. With every passing day, there come hardships that befall all the soldiers on this field of combat. However, as the soldier has a chance to rest, he takes into hand a book to read. As he reads, a vision of life appears in his mind and in the center of it stands Mrs. Patsy Ransom, Mr. Charles Watts, and Mrs. Earlene Parks, who are known for their work in the field of education as a friend to all students. It is in that hour that all the soldiers seem to join in the picture and say "It is with deepest appreciation and gratitude that we extend to you our love, our hope, our all."

Dedication

When the time of the year rolls around for another Journalism Class to dedicate the annual to a special someone, it is a time of seriousness. Everyone must think earnestly about an endeared friend and person who has inspired someone to go further in life to success.

The Journalism Class of '67 has taken every step in selecting just the right person to dedicate the annual to this year. The dedicatee for the 1967 Panther Annual is Mrs. Reba Maddox Hands.

Finding words appropriate enough to describe such a person as Mrs. R.M. Hands is almost impossible. Mrs. Hands, I am sure, is not only loved by the journalism class but by the students, the school administrators, and faculty members.

Mrs. Hands, your former English students in journalism would like to say "Thanks for everything"!

Philosophy--Objectives--Probable Outcome

We believe in the dignity and worth of the individual; we believe that every child should be permitted to develop his God given talents to his maximum ability. We believe that every child should be an acceptable as well as a contributing member of society.

Our objectives are: to develop habits of good citizenship through an understanding of democratic principles and through application of these principles; to provide each individual with knowledge, skills, and attitudes that make for worthy home membership; to give every pupil functional knowledge of the fundamentals, so that he may be able to solve problems arising in everyday life; to develop sound mental and physical health; to discover innate abilities, interests, and need; to guide and direct pupils to those subjects which will enable them by their own capacities to prepare for the vocation from which they will derive the most good and through which they can give the most effective and efficient service; to develop within the individual intelligent self-control; to develop in the individual a sense of responsibility for his actions and a respect for the spiritual values of life.

Outcome: We hope that there will be a definite evidence that pupils have developed, by the time they finish high school, desirable skills, habits, knowledge, understandings, abilities, and appreciations to the extent that they will be able to make intelligent Life Adjustments in our American Way of Life.

Greetings

The faculty and students of the I.M. Terrell Junior-Senior High School are grateful to the parents and friends of our school for the splendid cooperation you have given us.

Life is truly an open book, and each act you perform becomes a part of the 'book' you are writing. Parents and teachers must continue to motivate and stimulate our students to strive for the best in education in order that they may take their places as participating and contributing citizens of our society.

The Junior High Department moved to Terrell from G.W. Carver Elementary School in September of 1956. Over a span of ten years the students have worked diligently to excel in their every endeavor. They have earned the privilege to be called a part of I.M. Terrell High School.

The department is composed of 554 students. Breaking this down into enrollment by grade, there are 162 seventh graders, 202 eighth graders, and 190 ninth graders. There are also fifteen homerooms and a faculty of nineteen. Working together, the students and faculty have not only excelled academically, but also athletic.

History Of The Senior Class

It was only two years ago that I.M. Terrell's senior class of 1967 took its major step in the climb toward scholastic success. Each of us, although from various schools, was eager to greet our new environments with open minds and high ideals.

While many of us acquired recognition in sports like David Payne, Clarence Howard, and John Moore, there were others of us who did equally as well by the academic standards. Some of these were Carolyn Shepherd, Walter Peoples, Yvonne Morris, and Donald Patterson all of whom were also a few of the first inductees into our chapter of the National Honor Society. Of course there were those of us who excelled in both. Nevertheless, we are proud to observe that most of us, who in their sophomore year began their climb, have continued to recognize and uphold their positions and obligations to their I. M. Terrell.

Our eleventh grade year was not only beneficial, but one of the most important ones that we will have. It was then that we saw ourselves reflected in the eyes of the senior class of that year. We saw their mistakes and therefore avoided making so many of our own. We saw their eager anticipation and we were therefore all the more determined to bask in our own glory.

Now we have reached that crucial point of life, the first step being one of independence. However, we are prepared to accept this step and others. We have begun our climb, we will not falter until we have reached our peak, and we will for you see, we are still the same Terrellites with open minds and high ideals.

Epilogue

"The life of every man is a diary in which he means to write one story, and writes another; and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what he vowed to make it."

--Sir James Matthew Barrie

Our life is like some great book that is slowly telling the story of our years. As each page is written, the landmarks of the past are one by one recorded.

In these few pages we have endeavored to compile another chapter in your life. We sincerely hope that this journal has brought and will bring to you all the experiences, the joys and the memories of days past spent.
